TRAITOR FORMER POLITICIAN MAY STILL HAVE ACCESS TO PARLIAMENT HOUSE

The Government has refused to confirm whether the former politician who sold out Australia to advance the interests of a foreign regime still has access to Parliament House.

Former parliamentarians are automatically entitled to passes which grant them access to the private areas of Parliament House in Canberra. Senator Roberts said:

‘The former politician that, in the ASIO spy chief’s words, “sold out their country to advance the interests of a foreign regime” could be sitting in an office in Parliament House right now and no one would know.

‘Instead of treating this concern seriously, the Government’s response to my question on this was laughter.

‘The Government or ASIO Chief Mike Burgess must name this traitor as soon as possible.

‘This cloud over Parliament’s security must be fixed immediately.’
